JAMBOREE

DENMARK

2012

Are you ready to leave for Jamboree Denmark 2012? At least we hope that you have begun looking forward to it even though it still takes some months before the jamboree opens! It is now time to start considering your attendance and your preparations for the camp. One of the things to decide is which members of your group will go and for how long.

When you have registered for the event, you will get in contact with a Danish host group. The next newsletter will be published in December 2011 – before the final registration for the jamboree. The last information kit will be emailed in the spring of 2012. It contains the information needed for the final preparations by the groups.

We are very proud to introduce you to the many possibilities at the jamboree; we can hardly wait to see you next summer. The jamboree is being organized by a large staff of skilled volunteers from the five Danish scout and guide associations. They have already worked for almost a year to give you what is probably your largest camp experience ever. They work with all kinds of tasks from the toilet facilities to the huge opening show where you will get the first opportunity to meet all the other 35,000 scouts and guides visiting Holstebro from 21 to 29 July 2012.

Jamboree Denmark 2012 will be held at Holstebro in the western part of Denmark. The jamboree site leaves enough space for 35,000 scouts and guides, and the area provides ample opportunity for lots of activities. The port of Struer, a nearby town at the strait Limfjorden, has been booked for sailing activities organized by the sea scouts, and in the port of Thorsminde between the North Sea and Nissum Fjord there will be water activities and sailing in dinghies.
